5 things to do this weekend

From rah-rahs to puppy paws, there's plenty to do. You can also check out a play, make some art or enjoy multicultural day at a mosque in Halifax. YVETTE D'ENTREMONT METRO

1 Doggie Expo

Dartmouth's going to the dogs this weekend! The pet tradeshow at the Dartmouth Sportsplex brings pet businesses and rescue groups together with pet owners and enthusiasts. Dogs are welcome. The expo runs from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Sunday. Tickets are $5, with free admittance for children under 12.

2 The Boat

It's a boatload of fun at Neptune Theatre's Scotiabank Stage as Theatre New Brunswick presents The Boat. The play is based on Alistair MacLeod's short story about a boy in 1940s Cape Breton. Does he go to the city for an education? Or stay home and fish to support his family? The show runs until April 9, with multiple performances this Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Visit sales.neptunetheatre.com for tickets.

3 Creative Arts

Bring home your own masterpiece this Saturday as Ross Creek brings its expertise for an afternoon of creative arts activities at the Halifax Central Library. The free event runs from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and gives the public a chance to explore new media led by the non-profit art centre's artists and educators.

4 Multicultural Day at the Ummah Mosque

Meet your Muslim neighbours and celebrate diversity this Saturday. Organized by the parents and teachers of the Maritime Muslim Academy, admission is free. The event includes guest speakers and a kids' parade. There will also be food, art, face painting, henna, Islamic clothing and more for sale (cash only). The first annual event takes place from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Ummah Masjid and Community Centre in Halifax, 2510 Saint Matthias St.

5 Cheer Expo

Get your cheer on at the Halifax Forum. The Competitive Cheerleading National Championships are in town this weekend, with more than 100 teams (thousands of athletes) battling for the national banner. Spectators can get tickets to the event, with competition starting at 9 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $15 for one day, $25 for two. Kids five and under get in free.

Donald Murray Peters arrives at Halifax Provincial Court Thursday to face second degree murder charges in the 2005 homicide of Naomi Kidston. JEFF HARPER/METRO

New DNA testing cracks cold case

CRIME

Man charged with murder of Naomi Kidston 12 years ago

Jonathan Briggs
For Metro | Halifax

Halifax police say further evidence testing led to charges laid Thursday in the homicide of Naomi Kidston 12 years ago.

Police said Donald Murray Peters, 50, was arrested without incident on Stanley Street in Saint John, New Brunswick, on Wednesday morning and brought to Halifax, where he appeared in provincial court Thursday afternoon.

"Through re-looking at all the evidence that had been collected and sending exhibits away for further testing, we got to the point where we are today," Halifax Regional Police Supt. Jim Perrin said at a news conference. "I would say that (advancement in DNA technology) certainly assisted. I wouldn't say it was the point that solved it, but it certainly contributed to the success that we have in this case."

Kidston, 26, was found dead in her apartment on River Road in Spryfield on June 7, 2005. An obituary printed at the time said she was involved in the Halifax church community, feeding the homeless as a volunteer at St. Mary's Basilica Catholic Church, working as a childcare provider at St. George's Church and as a lunch monitor at Cornwallis

Street Baptist Church.

Police said Peters and Kidston knew each other, but weren't intimate partners or in a domestic relationship.

Peters kept his head down as he was brought into Halifax provincial court on Thursday for his arraignment. He'll appear in court again on April 12 by video link. In the meantime, if he wants to apply for bail, he'll have to do so in Nova Scotia Supreme Court.

"The defence has made rumblings about having a bail hearing," Crown attorney Rick Woodburn said outside court. "The Crown will be opposing any bail requests at this particular time."

The provincial government set up a reward of $150,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for the homicide through the Major Unsolved Crimes Program. Police said the program was not a factor in the arrest of Peters.

INVESTIGATION

Two charged with human trafficking

Halifax police have laid human trafficking charges against two men after a months-long investigation.

Police say they started an investigation in October 2016 into "a man who directed and influenced a 22-year-old woman for the purpose of prostitution."

On Wednesday, they arrested two men and a woman in an apartment on Main Avenue. The 56-year-old woman was released without charges on Thursday, and the two men were charged.

Leslie Burton Gray, 24, and Andre Jerome Gray, 21, were expected to appear in Halifax provincial court on Thursday.

SCHOOL BOARD

North Preston teacher being let go unfairly, say parents

Grace Gormley
For Metro | Halifax

A group of upset parents from North Preston walked into the Halifax school board Thursday to protest the termination of a popular, "committed" teacher. The roughly 10 women from the community who first gathered outside Nelson Whynder Elementary said they were shocked after the announcement that well-loved teacher, Joida Tynes-Simons, was getting "let go" this week after being reviewed by her administration.

Tynes-Simons has taught in the area for over 30 years and is an important part of the community, protesters said. "We need Ms. Tynes back in our school," one of the women shouted outside the elementary building.

Carol Beals' three children were taught by Tynes-Simons, and she thinks the decision is unfair.

"She's there for everybody, this is crazy," Beals said.

The administration was setting her up for failure.

Carol Beals

The group said Tynes-Simons was very involved with her students, attending their proms, basketball games, and cheerleading practices. She also ran a Brain Power program in the summertime and was a tutor with the Black Educative Association, the protesters said.

She gave many of her students the tools they needed to succeed, the group added, with lots of them going on to attend university and colleges.

"She was a committed teacher, 365 days of the year," said Beals.

The situation began with a personal problem the principal had with the teacher, parents said.

"The administration was setting her up for failure, not success," Beals added.

Although the school gave Tynes-Simons some modern coaching, administration took her out of her usual Grade 4 teaching position last year and moved her to Grade 2, said Beals.

With an apparent high turnover of teachers in the elementary school, parents said they liked knowing their children could rely on Tynes-Simons. When students finished Grade 3, they would look forward to having her as a teacher the next year, said Beals.

+ RESPONSE

Doug Hadley, spokesman for the HRSB, said Tynes-Simons' review is a "personnel issue," and they cannot comment on matters of this nature.

"She was a familiar face to the kids," Beals said.

According to the review, Tynes-Simons was "95 per cent inadequate to teach," Beals said.

Parents said they think that's impossible.

"She's got to be doing something right," Beals added.

The parents moved their protest to the Halifax Regional School Board (HRSB) office in Burnside after standing outside the school, in an attempt to fight back.

Although they didn't get any answers there, Beals said they aren't giving up and hope to rally more community support.

"As parents, we're going to fight for her," she said.

RELIGION

Community centre to host Preston service after church fire

Members of an historic church just east of Halifax will soon work out a plan to return to the building after a fire tore through the upper reaches of what was a beloved gathering spot for many in the community, its pastor said.

Rev. Wallace Smith of St. Thomas Baptist Church in North Preston, N.S., said he's awaiting a report from an insurance inspector on the extent of the damage at what's been a popular spiritual and social home for the predominantly black community since the church was founded over 160 years ago.

Smith said Thursday that he and other church leaders will need further information to determine when and how they can return to the site.

"We have not lost our focus as Christians. We're still looking forward to some time in the very near future, going back inside and worshipping," said Smith.

"We're meeting tonight and we'll decide after this what our plans are for moving forward as to where we will worship at and what we will do in the future."

No one was hurt in the accidental blaze, but the rear of the wooden building was left with a gaping, charred hole that reaches the peak of the roof.

Matt Covey, a fire prevention official with the Halifax fire department, said it appears the fire originated in a malfunctioning heat recovery ventilation unit, either from heat it was generating or in the overheating of wiring related to the equipment.

We're meeting tonight and we'll decide after this what our plans are for moving forward as to where we will worship at and what we will do in the future.

Rev. Wallace Smith

"A breaker panel won't always protect you from a malfunctioning device," Covey said, adding that by the time power shuts off excessive heat can be generated either in the unit or in wiring.

As fire investigators and insurance adjusters complete their work, Smith said he already has a sermon prepared for a special service Sunday. He said a previously planned service on the theme of community healing will go ahead at the nearby community centre at 3 p.m.

"We're praying, and still believing and trusting in God in what is a grieving time for us. We're still moving forward," said Smith.

The pastor said on some Sundays, his church receives as many as 600 people and has a choir of about 30 people.

Allister Johnson, a licensed minister who has written a book about the history of the church, said the building has never had a fire before.

Although there were major renovations completed in 2006, "there's no indication there's ever a Sunday where there wasn't a church service," since the founding in 1856.

Johnson said the church has been the cornerstone of the black Baptist community — which currently has about 4,000 residents — since the settlement began.

"It's been ingrained in people for generations upon generations," he said. Johnson said with such deep historical roots, it's essential to find a way to restore the building.

"We are in this predicament and God will bring us through it," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Judges say Oland wrongly denied bail in murder case

JUSTICE

Supreme Court ruling states accused not a threat to public

Dennis Oland was wrongly denied bail pending an appeal of his second-degree murder conviction, the Supreme Court of Canada says in a judgment that clarifies the grounds for granting release to people who challenge a finding of guilt.

The unanimous high court ruling Thursday had no immediate effect on Oland's high-profile case, given that he is no longer in custody while awaiting a new trial.

But the 9-0 decision breaks new ground on bail eligibility in appeal matters and is therefore almost certain to have influence beyond the sensational New Brunswick case in which Oland was initially convicted of killing his father.

Well-known businessman Richard Oland was bludgeoned to death in his Saint John, N.B., office in July 2011, and his son Dennis, now 49, was convicted in 2015. He was sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole for 10 years.

Oland appealed in January of last year and sought release, but the bail request was turned down — a decision that was later affirmed by the New Brunswick Court of Appeal.

Dennis Oland heads from Court of Queen's Bench in Saint John, N.B. on January 3.

ANDREW VAUGHAN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oland was subsequently granted release by the same court last October, when a new trial was ordered after he had spent almost a year in prison.

That effectively made his appeal to the Supreme Court moot.

Nevertheless, his lawyers continued to pursue the bail eligibility matter with the aim of clarifying the issue in cases that turn on the question of public confidence in the justice system.

In a statement Thursday, Richard Oland's brother Derek said: "We are pleased with today's Supreme Court of Canada decision and continue to believe Dennis is innocent."

In denying bail last year, a New Brunswick judge said that while Dennis Oland posed no danger to the general public, the seriousness and brutality of the crime weighed in favour of his detention.

The judge was not persuaded that granting bail would uphold public confidence in the administration of justice.

In its ruling, the Supreme Court disagreed.

When deciding to grant bail

+ WHAT'S NEXT

A new murder trial is expected next year at the earliest.

to someone awaiting an appeal, judges will "draw on their legal expertise and experience" in weighing factors that affect public confidence, Justice Michael Moldaver wrote. These include the strength of the grounds of appeal, the seriousness of the offence, public safety and flight risks.

"This person is someone who is thoughtful, dispassionate, informed of the circumstances of the case and respectful of society's fundamental values," he wrote.

Aside from the seriousness of the offence for which Oland was initially convicted, he seemed "an ideal candidate for bail" and entitled to the same treatment as someone less prominent in the community, Moldaver said.

In Oland's case, Moldaver wrote, the appeal judge was satisfied there were no appreciable public safety or flight risk concerns, and there were clearly arguable grounds to challenge his conviction.

In addition, the trial judge found that Oland's crime tended more toward the offence of manslaughter than to first-degree murder, lessening his degree of "moral blameworthiness," Moldaver said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

POLITICS

Premier accused of games

Opposition parties are accusing Nova Scotia Premier Stephen McNeil of playing political games by refusing to rule out a quick election call after tabling the spring budget next month.

McNeil said Thursday the legislature would be called back into session on April 25, with the budget to follow two days later on April 27. He said the plan is to have the session wrap up by the Victoria Day long weekend on May 22.

But with speculation high that an election call could come this spring, McNeil refused to rule out whether he would drop the writ before the budget is debated and passed by the legislature.

"I'm looking forward to tabling a budget to communicate to Nova Scotians how I see this province going forward and I'm looking forward to spending my summer going around talking to Nova Scotians," was all McNeil would say on the subject.

This year, the budget will be presented about three weeks later than it has been for much of the last decade.

In noting that, Opposition PC Leader Jamie Baillie said the premier is playing politics and that's why the province should have a fixed election date.

"There are hundreds of good organizations, government departments and agencies that are waiting for their budgets for no good reason," said Baillie. "They are concluding that he is putting his political needs ahead of the needs of Nova Scotians."

FEDERAL BUDGET

No new spending for on-reserve fire safety

Despite “unprecedented” spending for Indigenous issues, the new federal budget doesn’t promise a penny more for fire prevention in First Nations communities.

The words “fire protection,” “fire prevention,” and “fire services” do not appear once in the 90,000-word document, which does include $3.4 billion in new spending for Indigenous people in Canada, on top of the $8.4 billion announced last year.

“There really hasn’t been that

If our people continue to live in tinderbox situations, we will continue to see more lives lost.

Isadore Day

much dollars allocated to Indigenous peoples, basically ever,” Assembly of First Nations National Chief Perry Bellegarde said. “It is in that sense unprecedented.”

“Our challenge now is to make sure that these resources get out to the communities to have a real, substantive impact on the ground,” Bellegarde said.

There is new money for Indigenous health, languages, off-reserve housing and more. On-reserve infrastructure however, which includes fire protection services, will see no new money from the budget.

Earlier this winter a Torstar

News Service investigation revealed that at least 173 people have died in house fires on First Nations reserves since the federal government stopped keeping track of the data in 2010.

Many of the houses that burn to the ground with people inside them do not meet basic building or fire codes. Overcrowding and inadequate construction means people are often sleeping in very dangerous situations, said Ontario Regional Chief Isadore Day.

Updated version of Cloud Atlas has gone digital

Joe Callaghan
Metro | Toronto

Clouds can now wander a little less lonely.

The good news for sky-watchers didn’t rain so much as pour Thursday as World Meteorological Day was marked by the official unveiling of upwards of a dozen ‘new’ clouds by the world’s weather chiefs. That wasn’t all.

The spirits of amateur cloud-spotters across the globe were sent sky high with the release of a new digital edition of the International Cloud Atlas — the classification system for clouds and meteorological phenomena — which had last been updated in 1987.

The atlas dates back to the 19th century but amateur and scientific cloud observers had long been clamouring for an update from the World Meteorological Organization.

“Just like newspapers and everything else, everyone has gone digital right?” laughed Phil Austin, associate professor at the University of British Columbia specializing in cloud physics.

“It’s almost the adage; does it even exist if it’s not online?” said David Sills, a meteorologist with Environment and Climate Change Canada based in King City, Ont.

With the help of Austin and Sills, here are some of the key cloud changes that swept in Thursday.

Volutus comes in from the storm

A whole new species, volutus was quite literally a slow roller. “Sometimes you get a thunderstorm and it produces this gust of cold air that moves out from under it,” explains Sills. “Hence that leading edge keeps moving and moving, especially if it’s near sunset, it can keep moving overnight.”

Asperitas gets its moment

After much campaigning from citizen cloudspotters, asperitas was recognized as a new cloud, the atlas describing it “as if viewing a roughened sea surface” from below. “Probably everyone has noticed these once in a while,” said Sills.

Go catch ‘em all

“There’s a whole nephology community out there with your typical cloud nerds who have all the names memorized,” said Sills, (this one is a Fluctus). “It’s something fun for everyone. And now more people can get involved.”

Human, nature impact felt

Patches of cloud that are formed over forests and waterfalls are among those newly classified, like the Cataractagenitus you’re likely to see at Niagara Falls.

'We are not afraid': May

TERROR ATTACK

Britain's PM encourages return to normality

Authorities on Thursday identified a 52-year-old Briton as the man who mowed down pedestrians and stabbed a policeman to death outside Parliament, saying he had a long criminal record and once was investigated for extremism — but was not currently on a terrorism watch list.

As lawmakers returned to work a day after the rampage killed five people and injured at least 30, British Prime Minister Theresa May vowed: "We are not afraid."

"Today we meet as normal — as generations have done before us, and as future generations will continue to do," she said to cheers in the House of Commons.

Daesh claimed responsibility for Wednesday's attack, which police said was carried out by Khalid Masood, a U.K.-born resident of the West Midlands in central England.

People at a vigil at Trafalgar Square in London on Thursday. GETTY IMAGES

Masood plowed a rented SUV into pedestrians on London's Westminster Bridge, killing an American man and a British woman and injuring more than 30 people.

A 75-year-old victim on the bridge died late Thursday of his wounds, police said.

A police officer was also fatally stabbed.

Some of the victims were identified as Kurt Cochran, 54, of Utah and British school administrator Aysha Frade, 43 and 48-year-old Constable Keith Palmer, a 15-year veteran of the Metropolitan Police.

Police arrested eight people on suspicion of preparing terrorist acts as authorities sought Masood's motive and possible support network.

One arrest was in London, while the others were in the West Midlands city of Birmingham. Police said they were searching properties in Birmingham, London and Wales.

As police investigated, Parliament got back to business, opening the day with a minute's silence for the victims.

May set the tone in the House of Commons, saluting the heroism of police and the ordinary actions of everyone who went about their lives in the aftermath.

"It is in these actions — millions of acts of normality — that we find the best response to terrorism. A response that denies our enemies their victory, that refuses to let them win."

A look at victims of attack near London's Parliament

The five people killed and at least 30 injured in the attack in Westminster were a cosmopolitan snapshot of one of the world's most cosmopolitan cities.

The dead included a British policeman, stabbed repeatedly, an American tourist who was celebrating his 25th wedding anniversary and a school administrator adored in the Spanish town where she spent summer vacations with her family.

Here's what's known about the victims:

Police Officer Keith Palmer, 48, was on duty protecting Parliament Wednesday when he was stabbed to death.

He had been a member of the parliamentary and diplomatic protection forces for 15 years, and a soldier in the Royal Artillery before that.

Honouring Palmer, Prime Minister Theresa May said he was "a husband, a father ... he was every inch a hero."

Aysha Frade, a British national whose mother is Spanish, was one of two people killed on the bridge.

In the northwestern Spanish town of Betanzos, where her mother was born and her two sisters run an English-language school, the mayor said: "The whole town is shocked."

Although Frade, 43, was born and lived in London, she spent weeks every summer in Betanzos visiting relatives, said Ramon Garcia Vazquez, mayor of the town of 13,000 people in Spain's Galicia region.

Kurt W. Cochran, from the United States, was on the last day of a trip celebrating his 25th wedding anniversary when he was killed, according to the Mormon church his parents-in-law work for.

His wife, Melissa, was seriously injured. She remains hospitalized.

In a tweet, U.S. President Donald Trump called Cochran "a great American" and said: "My prayers and condolences are with his family and friends." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Security tightened after car tries to ram Antwerp shopping area

Belgian authorities tightened security Thursday in the port city of Antwerp after a Frenchman drove his car at high speed through a busy shopping area, forcing pedestrians to jump out of the way.

French President Francois Hollande compared the incident to the attack in London Wednesday, saying the man was "trying to kill people or create a dramatic event."

The federal prosecutor's office said the car was intercepted late Thursday morning at the port docks and police arrested a man, identified as 39-year-old Mohamed R., who has been living in France.

In the car, authorities found knives, a shotgun and a gas can with an unknown liquid. There were no immediate reports of injuries. An official at the prosecutor's office, who asked not to be identified, said the suspect "was under the influence" but refused to elaborate whether it was drugs or alcohol.

Authorities immediately raised security in the centre of Antwerp.

At first sight, the incident appeared to have the hallmarks of several extremist attacks in Europe — a vehicle in a busy area bent on mowing down pedestrians. Trucks were used last year in deadly attacks in Nice and Berlin, and an SUV was used Wednesday in London, where five people died in a rampage close to the British Parliament. The attacker was shot dead by police.

HOW DID THIS CHICKEN GET SO BIG?

Despite what you may have read on the Internet, gigantic chickens are nothing to be afraid of. The chicken in that viral video from Kosovo belongs to a very large breed called the Brahma. How did it get that big? The usual way: selective breeding. Here's how it works.

HISTORY

Brahmas are believed to have been bred from Cochins, a preposterously fluffy, massive breed from South Asia. A craze for Brahmas and other giant chickens swept the western world in the mid-1800s, according to poultry historian Andrew Lawler.

DIVERSITY

The wild relatives of modern chickens, red junglefowl, gifted today's pluckers with incredible genetic diversity. Chickens come in an astounding variety of shapes, sizes and colours. All those differences result from variations in DNA between chicken breeds and individual chickens. A 2004 study found chickens have six to seven times more genetic diversity than humans do.

ARTIFICIAL SELECTION

Like humans, chickens have two copies of all their genes, one from each parent. Say there's a single gene that causes giant-ness in chickens. Possibly, some giants may have just one copy of the gene, while others have two. If farmers breed giant chickens only with other giants over many generations, eventually all chicks will reliably be giant. That means the whole flock is homozygous: They all have two copies of the giant gene, and all their future chicks will too. This is called breeding true.

NATURAL SELECTION

Sometimes a particular genetic trait will help a species survive and reproduce better. That trait will tend to become more common over time. That's natural selection. But for centuries, humans have interfered with this process, breeding chickens for traits they want to see. That's artificial selection.

Rangers power up to stand out

ACTION MOVIES

Latest reboot combines big spectacle with cerebral drama

Steve Gow
For Metro Canada

To paraphrase Mark Twain, there's no such thing as a new idea. Instead, as the great American humorist insisted, we only twist old ideas into curious new combinations.

Of all things, that's just what has happened to Power Rangers.

In the 1990s, the Japanese-influenced live-action series about a quintet of teens who achieve the ability to morph into superheroes not only captivated young minds, it grew into a global marketing phenomenon and the most-watched children's program on American television.

"I'm excited to see how people receive the film," admitted Australian actor Dacre Montgomery, who plays the team-leading Red Ranger in the reboot. "I think it is a good representation of where we're at in the world at the moment and it's good that it has an opportunity to come back to life."

For those who recall, there wasn't anything fancy about the original series — just a bunch of costumed martial-arts stuntmen groaning and duelling with goofy rubber monsters on cheap-looking sets. In the age of the big-screen blockbuster however, Power Rangers is ready for an impressive effects makeover on par with Marvel hits like The Avengers and Guardians of the Galaxy.

"This film draws a fine line between those other movies," explained Montgomery. "Those visceral, intelligent, complex movies that are so beautiful to watch and the big superhero spectacles — and hopefully combines them in such an effective way that we can engage (fans) on an even deeper level than other superhero franchises."

Another way the reboot attempts to carve itself a piece of the comic-book movie market is through inclusivity. Whereas the old show was a campy mess of non-stop action, producers aimed to ensure the new squad resonated with today's teens by providing depth and proving how our differences can maximize our full potential when fully united.

"All of the Marvel and DC worlds — they're not as diverse as this cast is," added Montgomery.

"We are legitimately from different corners of the planet, each of the cast members, and although we don't this American accent, we all bring different cultural elements of our backgrounds of upbringing to those roles which makes it an even more diverse and interesting dynamic."

Power Rangers isn't the only phenomenon Montgomery has been fortunate to find himself in during his short career. Following production, the 22-year-old was cast in last year's most buzzed-about show — Stranger Things.

This film draws a fine line between those other movies.

Dacre Montgomery, actor

"I feel like a bit of a nerdy fan on-set every single day," said Montgomery, currently filming as the antagonist in the second season.

"Enjoying that world has been a lot of fun and exactly what I was seeking in contrast to Power Rangers."

PERSONAL SHOPPER

French director praises Kristen Stewart in their second film

Richard Crouse

For Metro Canada

Ghostbusting is supposed to make you feel good. If that's true, why does Personal Shopper's Maureen (played by Kristen Stewart) appear so miserable all the time? Perhaps it's because the spirit she is trying to bust is that of her brother Lewis, a twin who died of a heart attack in a rambling, old Paris house.

In her second film with French director Olivier Assayas, the Twilight star gives a career topping performance, brittle yet calm in the face of mounting terror.

There is a detached feel to the performance that recalls the remove Hitchcock's leading ladies often projected as she navigates through personal tragedy and supernatural mystery.

"Kristen is the great actress of her generation," says Assayas. "I feel very privileged to have this connection with her. It is miraculous to work with a young actress who realizes there is no end to what she can do. You tell her, 'You can fly,' and she doesn't believe it and then she does it.

"I have always loved to work with young actors and actresses. You catch them at a moment when they are transforming and opening up. I think it is always interesting to work with actors when you can give them something. When you work with great actors who have done it all, it is very difficult because you give them something that they have already done better in another movie ten years before."

Their previous collaboration, Clouds of Sils Maria, earned Stewart a rare honour.

She was the first American actress to be nominated for and win a best supporting actress César award, the French equivalent of an Oscar.

"She is obsessed with breaking anything that could feel like routine," he says.

"She gives herself this rule of not doing what she would instinctively do. When you do a scene there is an obvious starting place. She never takes it. That's what I love."

"Usually I work with actors once, twice and after a while I realize we've gone all the way.

Olivier Assayas says Kristen Stewart has great instincts. AP

With Kristen I think I could go on and on."

Personal Shopper is a ghost story, so things take a strange turn when Maureen's phone lights up with mysterious texts while she's on a quick Chunnel trip to London. "R U real? R U alive or dead?" she writes, replying to the Unknown texter. "Tell me something you find unsettling," comes the response, opening the door for Maureen to begin exploring her fears, phobias, digging deeper than she ever has.

"I don't believe in the supernatural but I believe there is more to life than the material world. Science kind of proves it. There is so much going on that we can't see because it is too small or too big or whatever. We have our own relationship with some invisible world. Each of us has his own version of it. You end up living with the departed.

"Each of us has an inner world which is much more complex than the material world. It's much more fascinating in terms of cinema. I don't think it is bizarre to try and connect with that."

INTERVIEW

Real life haunts Kristen Stewart

In the disheveled backroom of an East Village restaurant, Kristen Stewart is sarcastically motivating the French director Olivier Assayas for a photo shoot.

"You're in America now, dude," Stewart jokes. "We've got to sell the s— out of this movie."

Stewart, a blockbuster veteran at 26, is well acquainted with the demands of movie promotion. But with Assayas, she has found a freedom from such concerns. She and the director have forged an unlikely but formidable bond that has resulted in two highly acclaimed movies, both made in Europe, far outside of Hollywood jurisdiction.

They're an odd pair: She, a rebel A-lister from Los Angeles who has become one of the movie's most exciting and uncompromising actors; he, a demure Parisian whose layered, cerebral films teeter between reality and fiction.

What makes them click? she chuckles.

"That's the main question," she says. "I don't know. We like each other."

Their latest film, Personal Shopper, is full of mysteries, too. It's a ghost story, set in a contemporary world of texting and Googling. In the film, which opens Friday, Stewart plays a twin whose brother has just died. Her day job is shopping in Paris for a stuck-up celebrity, but she's also a medium, and a series of strange encounters make her believe a spirit (her brother?) is contacting her.

There were plenty of moments while making Personal Shopper where Stewart's fame invaded. Shooting on the streets of Paris (Stewart drives a moped through the city in the film), they were surrounded by paparazzi.

But Stewart says she channeled the intrusions into her haunted character. "I thought I was being taken from, and it was good," she says. "It made me more sensitive. My nerves were very close to the surface."

The former Twilight actress, has deservedly made a reputation for herself as an unusually forthright and frank star. She has taken part after part, usually in smaller, indie productions, with an insatiable urge to work, to keep exploring. Stewart also debuted a short film she directed at Sundance this year.

In a memorable Saturday Night Live monologue earlier this year, she reflected on when Donald Trump in 2012 repeatedly tweeted that her then-boyfriend Robert Pattinson should "dump" her. "It was inconceivable, actually," Stewart says. "At the time, I regarded him as like a reality-show star. I was like: Who is this guy?"

"I've really allowed myself to really freely and with no regard to the effect of others live my life," says Stewart. ASSOCIATED PRESS

Usually I work with actors once, twice and after a while I realize we've gone all the way. With Kristen I think I could go on and on.

Greer roots for Harrelson

NEW RELEASE

Archer voice actor plays dog sitter in new movie Wilson

Richard Crouse
For Metro Canada

Judy Greer wrote a charming, self-deprecating book called I Don't Know What You Know Me From: Confessions of a Co-Star that chronicles her busy career as the second lead in dozens of movies and television shows like Jurassic World, Ant-Man, Arrested Development and It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia.

She is, as her twitter bio reads, "that girl from that movie/tv show," a familiar face on screens big and small. If you can't place the face, perhaps you'll recognize the voice.

One of her longest running roles has her voicing the clingy and emotionally fragile Cheryl Tunt on the wildly popular adult animated spy sitcom Archer. For Greer herself the show has provided a career highpoint.

"I got to sign someone's boobs at Comic-Con last year," she says. "I think you've really made it if you have your own action figure and people want you to sign their boobs."

There are other perks as well.

"I went to a dinner party recently, now I'm about to name drop, and Jon Hamm was there. He played a role on Archer but we don't record together so I never get to meet anyone who does it. When I saw him he said, 'God, I love your work on Archer and I love Archer so much I just wanted to be in it.' That was so cool. That was a highlight. Jon Hamm and the boob signing. They work well in tandem. Maybe I'll sign Jon Hamm's boobs sometime!"

Her latest film, Wilson, gave her the chance to meet another of her favourite actors.

"I'm looking to work with people who inspire me. I'm pretty happy with the roles I'm getting and I just want to work with more of my idols. I definitely checked that box with Woody (Harrelson)."

In the film Greer plays Shelly, a dog sitter who is one of the only people who finds the offbeat title character charming.

"There are a handful of actors who couldn't play this role because you would hate them all the way through to the end. Woody himself is so lovely and wonderful that in the beginning when Wilson is kind of terrible Woody makes you root for him."

"After I saw the movie I found myself wanting to spend more time talking to people who irritate me," she says.

"Maybe that person is a Wilson and Wilson is great. I would want to hear Wilson's opinion about things. Maybe I'm shutting people down too quickly. Maybe I need to give people who have strong opinions a little bit more of a minute in my life. Maybe there is something to be learned from them."

The effervescent 41-year-old, who will next be seen in War for the Planet of the Apes, laughs when she says, "I felt strongly that (director) Craig (Johnson) would be making a huge mistake by not casting me."

"Sometimes when I read something I fall in love with the character I'm going to play and sometimes I fall in love with the movie itself. In this case I fell in love with the whole movie, the script itself. I had to see this movie pop up for years to come and be so proud that I had a small piece of it. ### TRUMP STUFF

Emma Thompson turned down offer to stay at Trump Tower

British actress Emma Thompson says she once turned down an offer by Donald Trump to stay at the Trump Tower, years before he became the U.S. president. Speaking on a Scandinavian TV show, Thompson said while filming the 1998 film Primary Colors, Trump called to offer her "some accommodation in one of my Trump Towers. They're really comfortable." She said he added: "Maybe we could have dinner sometime."

CELEBRATING CANADA'S GIFTS TO THE WORLD

Yes, we have a desert

Sean Plummer

Some call it Canada's pocket desert. Located in the south Okanagan valley, the Okanagan (or Osoyoos) desert is the northern-most extension of the Sonoran Desert zone, which originates in Mexico.

The semi-arid desert, which has been home to First Nations tribes for 8,000 years, is a rich ecosystem with more than 100 rare plants and exotic wildlife.

Desert creatures like the painted turtle, scorpion and rattlesnake scurry around by day, while nocturnal amphibians like the Great Basin Spadefoot toad and the tiger salamander seek mates in the spring before the ponds dry up (the area is dotted in the warmer months with kliluk, or spotted lakes).

This antelope-brush ecosystem is one of the four most endangered ecosystems in Canada, and it has become a popular spot for eco-tourists eager to enjoy the beauty of its dry shrub-grasslands.

The Osoyoos Desert Centre offers guided and self-guided tours along a 1.5-km boardwalk.

It's our bag baby

Today it's a staple of households worldwide, but the commercially produced plastic garbage bag didn't come along until the late 1960s.

You can thank Canadian inventors Henry Wasylyk and Larry Hansen for conceiving it in 1950 and Union Carbide for producing it under the Glad label.

A version that degraded in sunlight was patented in 1971 by U of T chemist James Guillet — the millionth patent granted in Canada. SEAN PLUMMER

Hawaiian pizza was invented by a Chatham restaurateur. ISTOCK

Aloha, pizza

What do Hawaii and Chatham, Ontario, have in common? Pizza, sort of.

The sweet and sour pie — topped with ham and pineapple on a bed of tomato sauce and cheese — was apparently invented in Chatham by restaurateur Sam Panopoulos at his Satellite Restaurant back in 1962.

His "Hawaiian" pizza is now popular around the world, though apparently it's no big deal in Hawaii. SEAN PLUMMER

Line-free parks worth the wait

AMUSEMENT

Theme-parks seeking ways to eliminate long tedious lineups

At Universal Orlando Resort's new Race Through New York Starring Jimmy Fallon ride, waiting in line has been replaced by lounging on couches and listening to a racy barber shop quartet sing until it's time to enter the ride.

Universal is leading the theme-park charge into "virtual lines" that give visitors options for exploring a park or watching live entertainment instead of the tedium of looking at someone's back as you inch forward step by step to the thrill ride.

"It's kind of a bit of a science experiment for all of us," said Jason Surrall, a Universal creative director said about the "queue-less" waits. "We've known for years that waiting in line is one of the biggest dissatisfiers in our guests' day."

Universal is also trying the concept at another attraction. Later this year, when Universal opens its new Volcano Bay water park in Orlando, visitors will be given wristbands that will alert them when it's their turn to get on a ride.

"I think it represents the future of what we're going to be doing in themed entertainment," Surrall said. "I kind of joke that this is the first step on a journey that will eventually lead us to a generation that doesn't even know about theme park lines."

With the opening of Race through New York, Universal is leading the theme-park charge into "virtual lines." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It will be 'What do you mean, wait in a queue? What's that, Grandpa?'"

Virtual lines are the latest evolution in theme parks' efforts to shorten or eliminate waits for rides, or if waits are necessary evils, to improve the experience of biding one's time.

Almost two decades ago, those efforts were concentrated on elaborately-designed "pre-ride" lines such as Universal's The Amazing Adventures of Spider-Man, which goes past an elaborately-detailed Daily Bugle newsroom.

A few years later came the ride reservations systems of the Fast-Pass and Express Pass at Disney and Universal parks, respectively, in which ride-goers are assigned periods of time to show up for rides. But those reservations need to be made ahead of time, for the most part, and visitors can only make them on three rides a day.

Universal opens that concept to everybody, not just advanced planners, with its two new attractions, while also offering entertainment during the wait.

"Everybody is trying to do this, working not only on the rides but how to get you on the rides," said Dennis Spiegel, who heads the theme park consulting firm, International Theme Park Services. "Universal is at the forefront right now."

The Jimmy Fallon attraction and the Volcano Bay water park take different approaches to virtual lines.

At the Jimmy Fallon attraction, which opens next month, visitors enter an area made to look like the lobby of a Rockefeller Center building. Instead of getting in line, they can meander through the lobby looking at photos and memorabilia of past and present Tonight Show hosts and watch TVs playing clips of hosts Steve Allen, Jack Paar, Johnny Carson, Jay Leno and Jimmy Fallon. Up a flight of stairs are a lounge with couches, half a dozen consoles with touch screens displaying Tonight Show videos and a theatre stage. Visitors can hang out in the lounge area, charging their phones or talking while they wait. They can dance or take photos with an actor in the costume of Hash-tag the Panda, a staple character from Jimmy Fallon's show or listen to a performance from The Ragtime Gals, an incarnation of the barber shop quartet which is also a staple of the TV show.

When they enter the building, visitors are given a card with one of the colours in the NBC peacock logo. When it's their turn to go on the ride, lights in the waiting area will flash their colour and the singers will announce the colour. If they don't want to wait in the building, they can return at a designated time.

Universal hasn't released many details about how virtual lines will work at Volcano Bay, other than to say a watch-like device named TapuTapu will be given to visitors. It will flash "Ride Now" when it's their time to go on a ride.

Technology and our growing impatience with waiting are driving the move toward virtual lines, Spiegel said.

The proliferation of cellphone apps, along with the development of wristbands that emit radio signals, pioneered by Disney and able to track movement, made the virtual lines technically possible. America's growing impatience with waiting, from speed dating to Amazon Prime's two-hour deliveries makes it culturally imperative.

"Nobody wants to stand in line. We want to be first," Spiegel said. "It's just the way society is evolving."

Homan flawless in preliminary round

CURLING

Canada takes 11-0 record into playoffs at worlds

Canada skip Rachel Homan tuned up for the playoffs in style Thursday by beating Italy and Denmark to remain unbeaten at the world women's curling championship.

Homan and her team of third Emma Miskew, second Joanne Courtney and lead Lisa Weagle closed out round-robin play with a perfect 11-0 record. As the top seed, the Ottawa-based team will open with the hammer in the Page playoff 1-2 game against Russia's Anna Sidorova on Friday night.

The 1-2 winner will advance to Sunday's gold-medal game and the loser will fall into Saturday's semifinal. Canada is trying to win gold for the first time since 2008.

"You can go undefeated in the round-robin and not win a medal, so it's not like it's in the bag," said Miskew. "We still have two or potentially three tough teams to play. We're prepared to have to play the semi, but it would be great to come out tomorrow and have a good game to get to the final."

"But it's all business for us. We're just trying to stay patient out there, not get caught up in anything and just play our game."

Homan had already secured the first seed entering her morning game against Italy's Diana Gaspari at the Capital Gymnasium. Canada scored three in the fourth end and a deuce in the eighth for an 8-5 victory.

In the afternoon, Denmark's

Lene Nielsen had a 4-3 lead after seven ends but Homan moved ahead with an open hit for three points in the eighth. She iced the 8-4 win with a steal of two in the ninth.

It's Homan's third appearance at this event. She won bronze in 2013 in Riga, Latvia, and took silver the next year in Saint John, N.B.

Sidorova (8-3) wrapped up the second seed with a 6-4 victory over China's Bingyu Wang.

Sweden's Anna Hasselborg (8-3) will play Scotland's Eve Muirhead (7-4) in the Page playoff 3-4 game on Saturday afternoon.

The 3-4 winner will advance to the semifinal while the loser will play for bronze Sunday against the semifinal loser. The semifinal winner plays the 1-2 game winner for gold. THE CANADIAN PRESS

PYEONGCHANG 2018

NHLers may play in Games regardless

Alex Ovechkin has pledged to attend the 2018 Olympics in South Korea whether the NHL opts to go or not, and the Russian superstar might not be alone.

Donald Fehr, the executive director of the NHL Players' Association, said the possibility of players choosing to compete in Pyeongchang even if the NHL decides against interrupting the 2017-18 season "would be the next issue which arises."

"I'm not sure we take the view that that's a league decision anyway," Fehr said by phone on Thursday afternoon. "It's very probably an individual club decision."

The NHL declined to comment on the matter when reached Thursday, but it's not difficult to envision the headache it would cause for the league if players, beyond just Ovechkin, opted to attend next February while the NHL regular season continued to take place. The distraction alone would be enormous.

Both Fehr and the players don't want it to get to that point though. They're hoping for a resolution from the NHL which allows the group to attend a sixth consecutive Games.

"They know we think it's important,"

Fehr said. "They know that we believe very strongly that players ought to have an opportunity to play. They know we think it's in the long-run good for the game. And it's something that we ought to try and do."

NFL IN BRIEF

Patriots recover Brady's stolen Super Bowl jerseys

Tom Brady's stolen Super Bowl jerseys are back with the New England Patriots.

The FBI in Boston announced that jerseys worn by Brady during this year's Super Bowl and the 2015 Super Bowl were returned to Gillette Stadium Thursday.

Mexican authorities searched the property of tabloid journalist Martin Mauricio Ortega, where they found the jerseys.

Owners mull shortening overtime to 10 minutes

NFL owners will consider proposals next week to cut regular-season overtime from 15 minutes to 10; eliminate players leaping over the line of scrimmage on kick plays; and expansion of coaches' challenges and what can be reviewed by officials.

The annual meeting will also include discussion on the Oakland Raiders' potential relocation to Las Vegas. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MAKE IT TONIGHT

Delicious Blueberry Grunt

Ceri Marsh & Laura Keogh
For Metro Canada

This old-fashioned dessert boasts a warm, soup-y base and biscuit-y topping and only gets better when topped with vanilla ice cream.

Ready in 30 minutes

Prep time: 10 minutes

Cook time: 20 minutes

Serves: 6

Ingredients

- 4 cups blueberries
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 Tbsp fresh lemon juice
- 2 tsp lemon zest
- 2 cups spelt flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- pinch of allspice
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1 1/4 cups milk, more if necessary

Directions

1. In a 9-inch, deep skillet, mix blueberries, sugar, water, lemon juice and zest. Bring berry mixture to a boil then reduce to a simmer.

2. Meanwhile, sift flour, baking powder, sugar, salt and allspice into a bowl. Using a pastry cutter, cut in butter until in coarse crumbs. Mix in the milk using a fork until the dough comes together. (Add milk if the dough is too dry)

3. As the blueberries simmer, drop heaping tablespoons of the dough into the berries. Cover with a lid or tinfoil and allow dumplings to cook, about 12 to 15 minutes.

4. Serve warm with vanilla ice cream.

* IT'S ALL IN THE STARS Your daily horoscope by Francis Drake

Aries March 21 - April 20
You feel upbeat, confident and happy today. This is wonderful. Just be careful that you do not promise more than you can deliver.

Taurus April 21 - May 21
Without question, this is a feel-good day! Enjoy your interactions with others, especially co-workers.

Gemini May 22 - June 21
You will enjoy talking to younger people today, especially in groups. You will encourage people to think big and embrace ambitious goals.

Cancer June 22 - July 23
Conversations with parents and bosses will be uplifting today. Just make sure that you don't bite off more than you can chew.

Leo July 24 - Aug. 23
It's OK to have your head in the clouds, as long as you keep your feet on the ground. Travel plans look thrilling. Discussions about philosophy, politics and religion will be exciting and stimulating.

Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
This is a good day to discuss business matters, including those regarding shared property and debt. Do not be overly optimistic; stay in the realm of reality and common sense.

Libra Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
This is a great day to schmooze with others, because you will attract people who have a youthful, upbeat attitude. Enjoy fun discussions with everyone!

Scorpio Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You are eager to make big plans at work. Quite possibly, these plans involve travel. Whatever the case, your interactions with co-workers will be friendly and positive.

Sagittarius Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
This is a great day for sports events, the arts and playful excursions. Fun activities with children will delight. It's also a great date day. Enjoy yourself!

Capricorn Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Family discussions will be positive and ambitious today, because you are entertaining big plans.

Aquarius Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Because you are in such a positive, winning state of mind, all your communications with others will be successful. This means you are good to go if you sell, market, teach, write or act.

Pisces Feb. 20 - March 20
You have ambitious moneymaking ideas today. Just make sure that your plans are doable, because it's easy to go overboard with one's expectations today. Remain realistic.
